Dear Sir:

The all new ATC 810 CPT/IFR Flight Simulator is now available. Never before has general aviation had a simulator with the high degree of sophistication and versatility at such a low price- so particularly important now with the tremendous cost pressures of fuel and inflation.

The ATC 810 is FAA approved for FAR's 61 and 141. We'll help take the pain out of FAR 135 approvals with our complete approval test guide. Experience gained from dealings with other customers and GADO's will help to quickly maximize your ATC 810 utilization and lower training costs.

The ATC 810 is an all new simulator, not a built up version of an existing model. Latest computer and solid state technology are designed into the ATC 810 for even greater realism, reliability, and specific training applications. The ATC 810 is what you've needed for a long time.

The ATC 810 is the latest in the long and successful line of ATC flight simulators. We have been selling ATC simulators for more than 10 years. At ATC West. we are active professional pilots who have flown and instructed in twins and flown FAR 135. We understand your training problems and costs. We want your order. Get control of your training situation by filling out the order form and return it now with deposit to secure your delivery position.

Sincerely,

James G. Neighbor, Comm. Inst.
